LOSER'S GAME SLOWS UP ON CLAY COURTS

By DANIEL.

since Dean Mathey defeated George M. Church for the tennis championship of Princeton has he been able to record similar success in tournament competition. Time and again the friends have met, but some mystic, or perhaps It is altogether dynamic, force has guided Church's strokes to victory.

Yesterday afternoon, at the Bronxville Athletic Association, the rivals from Old Nassau met in the final for the Metropolitan title, and the result was in line with the expected. Church won in three etraight sets, at 6-3, 6-4, 9-7. The inal was long deferred because of the Absence of the players from this city.

The figures fail to give Mathey full tredit for the game he developed as the match progressed. The fussle was staged of a clay court, and Mathey, fresh from competition at Nassau and other turf courts, found the hard, speedy surface not greatly to his liking. It appeared to the superbound of the hard, speedy surface not greatly to his liking. It appeared to the superbound of the hard, speedy surface the game somewhat. Church was superbounded, and his passing shots from the net had both power and disception.

Past Mathey-Church matches have note shown Church on the attack, and his changed his tactics. He kept on the ofsensive from the start, and altogether hot Mathey developed streaks of erratic play, his long wished for victory over Church might have been scored.

Ench Loses Service.

The last set was in every way the best coof the three, for not only was it the most keenly contested, but it presented the best exhibition of tennis. Church ran off the first three games, mainly on his ability to bring off passing shots both from the net and the base line. Then Mathey longanized a rally that brought him up to even terms, at 5—all. Up to this stage church had been enjoying uniform success on his service, but Mathey suddenly cess on his service, but Mathey sudder developed an ability to break through be epponent's smashes.
